Sun sensor

It is known that the sun sensors can always be found on the inside of vehicles with automatic climate control. They are usually positioned on the dashboard. One exception to this general rule can be found in the above-mentioned vehicle, however. The sun sensor in this case is in the ventilation grille of the bonnet (Fig. 1). To prevent damage to the paint, proceed as follows when removing the sensor:

- Remove Torx screws (3x) underneath the bonnet (Fig. 2)
- Carefully push back the locating lugs on the ventilation grille above the bonnet (Fig. 3)
- Remove the ventilation grille (Fig. 4)
- Unclip the sun sensor from the back of the ventilation grille, pull off the electrical connection plug
